The procession crossed over into this city from the free bridge by way of Twelfth street, and at Twelfth street turned down Main. Down Main it went to Twenty-fifth, up Twenty fifth to Broad, and up Broad to the City Hall.

In front of the City Hall the line halted. Horns, cymbals, fires, and drums were stilled. The banners were raised into the air higher than ever, and the dusty veterans awaited the appearance of the Mayor, and anticipated with delight one of his felicitous little speeches; but, though solemnly awaited, he came not. A committee of investigation ascertained that he was not in his office.

At last Landon Boyd addressed the crowd, and suggested that a committee be appointed to wait upon Mayor Keiley at his residence. and request him to address the "citizens" bill.
